

RAVEN'S TRUTH

Last Message from the Wall

From the records of the Citadel, Oldtown.

The Wall has stood for thousands of years, guarding the realms of men. Many messages have passed through ravens — some true, some lost, some hidden.

This scroll was recovered after the fall of the Night King. Its words appear ordinary, yet Maesters believe not all knowledge is written in ink alone.

Some truths are:

- Hidden in plain sight
- Bound within symbols
- Seen, not read

The Raven who carried this message was known for layered meanings. Only those who look beyond the text will understand his final warning.

"Words deceive. Images remember."

Maester's Note

Many novices failed to notice that this scroll carries more than words.

The true message was pressed into the parchment itself, not written for careless eyes.

Those who inspect the scroll closely may find:

- Marks beneath the surface
- A picture bound within the document
- A truth visible only when extracted

"The eye sees only what the mind knows to seek."
